LB 306

which I am committing myself to put on that bill right now is an amendment that says that you can sue the surviving joint tenant, the spouse if you will, the widow if you will, but you cannot execute, you cannot execute that judgment against her home or against any forty acres of property she chooses. I know that a lot of people that have supported the bill and a lot of people who are against the bill are troubled by the horrible example and that horrible example being the possibility, however unlikely that it is, that a widow would be forced out of her home. This last amendment would preclude such a possibility and if the bankers or the creditors are going to collect against the property and all there is is the home and the forty acres, then they will have to simply wait. So I did want to make that known, that I am committed to that additional amendment. I ask that you advance the bill.
